Internationally renowned breast surgeon and researcher, Lisa A. Newman, MD, MPH, has been appointed Chief, Section of Breast Surgery and Chief of the Interdisciplinary Breast Program at NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center. Dr. Newman leads a multispecialty team that offers:

- advanced screening and imaging technologies
- innovative surgical and reconstruction techniques, including nipple- and skin-sparing mastectomies
- novel radiation approaches, including intraoperative radiation therapy

Much of this care is provided at the NewYork-Presbyterian David H. Koch Center, a new state-of-the-art ambulatory care center combining comprehensive clinical approaches and pioneering technologies with a seamless patient experience. Dr. Newman also oversees the breast care programs at NewYork-Presbyterian Lower Manhattan Hospital, NewYork-Presbyterian Brooklyn Methodist Hospital, and NewYork-Presbyterian Queens.

Dr. Newman joins NewYork-Presbyterian from the multi-hospital Henry Ford Health System in Michigan, where she was Director of its Breast Oncology Program. She is the founding Medical Director for the International Center for the Study of Breast Cancer Subtypes, a collaboration between multiple hospitals in the United States, Africa, and the Caribbean. Dr. Newman obtained her surgical oncology training at the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center. She continues to hold Adjunct Professorships at M.D. Anderson as well as the University of Michigan, where she previously served as Breast Center Director for 13 years.
