Weill Cornell Medicine

A distinguished clinician, educator, and researcher, Dr. Philip O. Katz has joined the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology at NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center and Weill Cornell Medicine as Director of Motility Laboratories. Dr. Katz previously served as Chairman of Gastroenterology and Nutrition at Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia and Professor of Medicine at Sidney Kimmel Medical College at Thomas Jefferson University.

A long-standing leader in the field of esophagology, Dr. Katz has particular expertise in pharmacodynamics of proton pump inhibitors, refractory gastroesophageal reflux disease, achalasia and other esophageal motility disorders, eosinophilic esophagitis, and non-cardiac chest pain. His research encompasses all aspects of gastroesophageal reflux disease, including nocturnal recovery of gastric acid secretion during proton pump inhibitor therapy and esophageal pain perception.

Dr. Katz has contributed to over 175 peer-reviewed publications and has coauthored several books, monographs, and textbook chapters spanning all areas of esophageal disease. He served as President of the American College of Gastroenterology from 2009 to 2010 during which time he initiated the ACG national mentoring program. He also was instrumental in establishing and is currently Co-Editor-in-Chief of the ACG Universe, the organization's online learning portal. In 2013, Dr. Katz was honored with the ACG's Berk-Fise Clinical Achievement Award.
