Ambulatory Care Network – Center for Special Studies

NewYork-Presbyterian is one of the nation's most comprehensive, academic healthcare delivery systems, dedicated to providing the highest quality, most compassionate care. From Westchester County to the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Queens, we are dedicated to partnering with our neighbors to improve quality of life and provide necessary services in the communities where our patients and employees live and work.

Manhattan's East Side

NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center is located on the Upper East Side and NewYork-Presbyterian Lower Manhattan Hospital is south of 14th Street in Manhattan.

Serving Our Community

NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital invested over $800 million in community benefit spending in 2017. We work closely with community physicians, medical associations, community-based organizations, schools, clergy, government, and elected officials to identify health priorities and to provide expertise and resources to address local issues in the neighborhoods we service, including:

- Upper East Side
- East Harlem
- Financial District
- Battery Park City
- Chelsea
- Federal and City Courthouse complex
- Tribeca
- Chinatown
- Little Italy
- SoHo
- Lower East Side

Healthcare

The NewYork-Presbyterian Ambulatory Care Network provides medical, mental health, and behavioral health services throughout Manhattan's East Side at 8 primary care practices and 3 specialty care locations. Individuals and families receive wellness visits, care for acute healthcare problems, and ongoing management for chronic diseases such as asthma, diabetes, and hypertension.

Programs

Chinese Community Partnership for Health: The Chinese Community Partnership for Health (CCPH) is a not-for-profit program providing the Chinese population of New York City with health education, a Chinese-language hotline with health information and referrals, and an outreach program. The outreach program deploys trained nurses to corporations, senior centers, public schools, and community organizations to provide vaccinations and screenings for blood pressure, glucose, cholesterol, vision, and hearing problems.

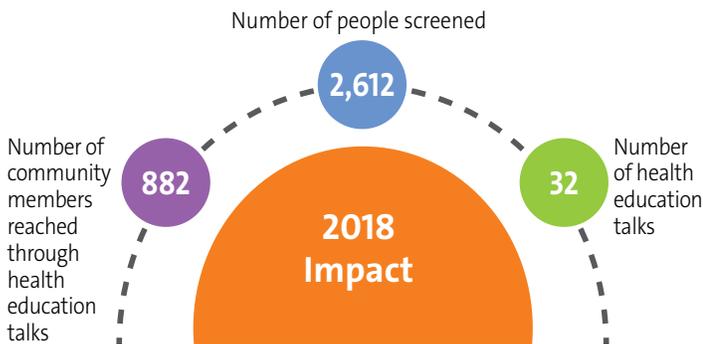

HIV/AIDS Care: The Center for Special Studies (CSS) in Chelsea provides first-class, HIV specialized care to people living with HIV/AIDS in a welcoming setting. The Center was one of the first programs in New York to be recognized as a Designated AIDS Center by the Department of Health and cares for 10 percent of New York City's pediatric/adolescent HIV/AIDS population. A multidisciplinary health care team oversees each patient's care, coordinating the vast range of clinical and supportive services offered at the practice.

Mental Health First Aid Training: NewYork-Presbyterian trainers, via the Thrive NYC initiative, offer Mental Health First Aid for Youth and Adults through an 8-hour evidence-based program. Through the training, participants gain skills to help individuals who may be developing a mental health problem or experiencing a mental health crisis.

Military Family Wellness Center: This innovative program connects military service members of any duty status and service era and their families with high quality, evidence-based services to help address the unique health challenges of service members and their loved ones in a confidential and secure environment.

Perelman Heart Health Education Center: The Perelman Heart Health Education Center heightens awareness about heart health through education, community outreach, and prevention programs. Annually, these programs reach over 3,500 individuals through 20 unique offerings each month.

Vulnerable Elder Protection Team (VEPT): The multidisciplinary Vulnerable Elder Protection Team, which is the first of its kind, is based in the emergency department of NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center and available 24/7 to assess, treat, and ensure the safety of victims of elder abuse or neglect. The team also collects evidence and works closely with the authorities when appropriate.

CCPH Lung Disease Prevention Program: A comprehensive Lung Disease Prevention Program is offered through CCPH to combat the prevalence of tobacco use and improve lung health in the Asian community. The program includes annual Lung Disease Prevention classes for restaurant and food industry workers. In partnership with the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, CCPH conducts TB screenings in Sunset Park, Brooklyn, and in Chinatown, Manhattan.

Health4Life (H4L): This comprehensive weight management program provides a safe and supportive environment for 4- to 18-year-olds and their families who are interested in improving their health by eating a more nutritious diet and increasing their physical activity. Through individual clinic visits as well as group programming, H4L empowers participants to make healthier lifestyle choices for themselves and their whole family.
